It is beginning to look now as if we will have had our hottest weather in June this year

When an Indian Chief Red Willow, objects to the millinery that women wear, it is time that something be done about it

Another thing Houston county will have plenty of this season and that is sugar cane It takes a rather wet summer to make good cane, and the crop promises to be satisfactory

Those who are off on a vacation are thinking of rounding up for the return trip to business and they who didn't go at all are figuring on taking a short change of some kind

It will come in mighty handy if the Houston county farmer only has to pick 15 bales of cotton to the mule and get as much money from it as 20 bales would bring in former times

A negro woman fell into a well in Montgomery the other day She started falling the sixty feet with a quart of whiskey in her arms, and when she was windlassed out, she still held the liquor unbroken

The Eagle publishes today the minutes of the first commissioners court ever held in Houston county, which will be of some historical interest to our people From it, one can see who had the making of the early history of Houston—that is, after we had fought all over Alabama for the county

By an act barring liquor even from Clubs Alabama converts itself, according to the total abstinence point of view, into a super State It was already a prohibition commonwealth, one of eight "dry" sisters in the Union Through the operation of State wide laws, county option and local option in towns and cities, about forty million people of the United States are now living under prohibition There are nearly three hundred "dry" cities with populations rising from 5,000 In some respects the present anti drink crusade is stronger than that which in 1846-55 brought fourteen States temporarily into the prohibition line, all in the North Maine alone remained true to the old pledge For current movement the test of endurance is still to be applied —N Y World

LEFT HIM

When the board of county commissioners adjourned the other day, it was the understanding that they would meet again Monday Some time during the day Sunday, they took a notion to go to Montgomery on a hurry call and be there when the Houston Henry county fight came up, and they slipped off and left Carlo Murphy He reported for duty Monday morning, and again this morning, but he has done no business for the county He does not know when they will come back, and they left no word for him The rest of the board may show up during the day, or tonight and then they will get down to business.

PRISONERS ESCAPE

But Are Captured After a Chase in Which Chief Domingus and Several Citizens Join

Two prisoners escaped early this morning and for awhile caused considerable commotion in the business section of town

It is said that Mr Holmes who was the first to discover what had happened sounded the alarm and started in pursuit of them He was joined in the chase by Chief Domingus Mr Hunter Mr Copeland and several others

The culprits as soon as they discovered the fact that they were being pursued separated one running in the direction of the new federal building while the other headed for Main street

But the attempts of both were futile The first was headed off and ran into one of the soda water dispensers and was caught The other being hard pressed Frank Bonham (the dog) having been added to the number of hot pursuers fairly flew into the new First National Bank Building after checking between the feet of the Chief who made a vicious but ineffectual kick at the jail breaker and jumped onto the big safe being taken with much difficulty

The two hens were the property of Mr G E Roland

EDUCATION

The great trouble with the public school is that many things are taught that are of no immediate use I believe in manual training schools I believe in the kindergarten system Every pupil ought to be taught how to do something—ought to be taught the use of their hands They should endeavor to put in palpable form the ideas that they gain Such an education gives them a confidence in themselves, a confidence in the future—gives them a spirit and feeling of independence that they do not now have

Children should be taught to think, to investigate, to rely upon the light of reason, of observation and experience They should be taught to use all their senses and they should be taught only that which in some way is at all useful They should be taught to use tools to use their hands to shape their thoughts in the construction of things Their lives should not be wasted in the acquisition of the useless or of the almost useless Years should not be devoted to the acquisition of the dead languages or to the study of history which for the most part is a detailed account of things that never occurred It is useless to fill the mind with dates of great battles with the births and deaths of kings They should be taught the philosophy of history the growth of nations of philosophic theories and above all of the sciences They should be taught the importance not only of financial but of mental homes after their own thoughts and give their actual opinions and if parents want honest children they should be honest themselves It may be that hypocrits transmit their failing to their offspring Men and women who pretend to agree with the majority who think one way and talk another can hardly expect their children to be absolutely sincere Robert G Ingersoll
